

Support and referral services for apprentices and trainees

Purpose

To provide support and referral services to apprentices and trainees experiencing difficulties.

Overview

This procedure relates to counselling services and/or referral options available to apprentices and trainees who may be experiencing stress/anxiety/trauma due to a critical or non-critical incident during their training contract term.

This procedure includes referrals to:

- the contracted fee-for-service provider,
- government or community agencies,
- Workplace Health and Safety Queensland, Office of Industrial Relations, and
- Fair Work Commission.

There is no cost to the apprentice/trainee for this service (i.e., the fee-for-service provider costs are paid by the Department).

Process

Regional Office:

- Make contact with the apprentice or trainee, and employer (if applicable), when aware of a situation involving a critical incident or non-critical incident.
 - If a complaint of work-related bullying and/or harassment is received, refer to the below section titled Allegations of work-related bullying and/or harassment for additional actions that must be taken.
- Make an assessment of the issue/situation.
- Determine the degree of risk to the apprentice or trainee (refer to the definitions of critical and non-critical incidents).
- Take the necessary actions below based on the risk assessment (refer Critical incidents or Non-critical incidents).
- Refer to Attachment 1 for further information to consider when assisting apprentices and trainees experiencing difficulties.
- In instances where the regional officer is experiencing difficulties, discuss the issue with the Regional Management Team to determine the best course of action.

Note – If the apprentice or trainee is under 16, and you have a reasonable belief that the apprentice/trainee has experienced sexual abuse or is at risk of sexual abuse, you must report it (refer to Laws targeting sexual offences against children for direction). If the apprentice or trainee is aged 16 or 17 years and you have a reason to suspect they are experiencing, or at risk of, sexual abuse, speak with your Regional Management Team for advice.

Critical incidents (immediate intervention is required) – On becoming aware of a critical incident:

- If in the company of the apprentice/trainee, immediately instigate the initial contact with the contracted fee-for-service provider, TELUS Health, on behalf of the apprentice or trainee, ensuring to advise:
 - the client is an apprentice/trainee;
 - the name of the apprentice/trainee; and
 - the applicable region.

OR

- If not in the company of the apprentice/trainee:
 - advise the apprentice/trainee of the contact details for TELUS Health for them to make an appointment for counselling, ensuring to stress that when booking they must identify they are an apprentice/trainee and the applicable region; and/or
 - contact TELUS Health and provide the apprentice/trainee's details and request TELUS Health contact the apprentice/trainee as a matter of urgency.
- Complete the Support and Referral Form and email a copy to the Queensland Apprenticeship and Traineeship Office (QATO) at OPRA@desbt.qld.gov.au for monitoring/statistical purposes.
 - Add information in CEDRIC against the training contract.
- Maintain a list of community-based/government agencies available for referrals and provide the details of these community-based/government agencies to the apprentice/trainee as an additional option for the apprentice/trainee to seek support.
- Follow-up with the apprentice/trainee to confirm that the apprentice/trainee has commenced (or is booked in to attend) fee-for-service counselling sessions.
 - Continue regular follow ups with the apprentice/trainee until such time as the apprentice/trainee confirms they no longer require the region's support/involvement.
 - Add information in CEDRIC against the training contract each time follow up occurs.
- Monitor the progress of the issue/situation.

Note – TELUS Health is the contracted fee-for-service provider and can be contacted 24 hours a day, 365 days a year on telephone 1300 360 364.

Non-critical incidents – On becoming aware of a non-critical incident:

- If the apprentice/trainee is not already receiving assistance through other avenues (e.g. community based organisations, mentoring support through their Apprentice Connect Australia Provider):
 - Advise the apprentice/trainee of the contact details of TELUS Health for them to make an appointment for counselling, ensuring to stress that when booking they must identify they are an apprentice/trainee and the applicable region.
 - Complete the Support and Referral Form and email a copy to the Queensland Apprenticeship and Traineeship Office (QATO) at OPRA@desbt.qld.gov.au for monitoring/statistical purposes.
 - Add information in CEDRIC against the training contract.
- Include and involve other parties (including the supervising registered training organisation) where necessary and applicable, to reach a resolution, being considerate of privacy issues and the sensitivity of the incident.
- Make use of the educational material and practical resources available to assist in developing a safe, supportive and productive workplace.
- Maintain a list of community-based/government agencies available for referrals and provide the details of these community-based/government agencies to the apprentice/trainee as an additional option for the apprentice/trainee to seek support.
- Follow up with the apprentice/trainee to confirm if the apprentice/trainee has commenced (or is booked in to attend) fee-for-service counselling sessions.
 - Continue regular follow ups with the apprentice/trainee until such time as the apprentice/trainee confirms they no longer require the region's support/involvement.
 - Add information in CEDRIC against the training contract each time follow up occurs.
- Monitor the progress of the issue/situation.

Allegations of work-related bullying and/or harassment:

Important – the Department has no authority to determine whether the alleged behaviour substantiates work-related bullying and/or harassment and whether or not it has occurred.

- If a complaint of work-related bullying and/or harassment is received, advise the complainant about the role of the Department (e.g. a regional officer can assist by visiting the workplace and attempting to resolve their concerns).
- Ask the party making the complaint if they have raised their concerns with the alleged harasser.
 - If the complaint is made by the apprentice/trainee, and they don't feel comfortable raising their concerns with the alleged harasser, they can ask for assistance from their supervisor, colleague, guardian, or union throughout this process.
 - If the employer is making the complaint about an apprentice or trainee, the employer should raise the issue with the apprentice/trainee prior to the Department's involvement.

- If the party making the complaint does not want to advise the alleged harasser of their contact with the Department, or does not want the Department's involvement or to participate in any formal process, advise the party of their options, which may include:
 - An informal resolution process for the workplace as per standard regional protocols, and/or
 - Referral to support services as per the process for critical and non-critical incidents above.
- If the party making the complaint does request assistance from the Department, and is prepared to advise the alleged harasser of their contact with the Department and participate in the process:
 - Offer the party referral to support services as per the process for critical and non-critical incidents above.
 - Schedule a visit to the workplace.
 - Be mindful that there may be other apprentices and/or trainees in the workplace, and their well-being may also require safeguarding.
 - Visit the Safe Work Australia website for information to assist with responding to bullying allegations.
 - Visit the Workplace Health and Safety Queensland (WHSQ) website for additional information on bullying and harassment (including sexual harassment), and managing psychosocial hazards and risks at work.
- During the workplace visit, attempt to resolve the issues between the parties as per regional protocols.
 - Note – This process should be focused on 'where to from here' rather than examining the harassing behaviour.
 - Utilise the Department's referral guide, education material and practical resources to assist the parties to generate options for improvement and develop some form of written or verbal agreement (e.g. Workplace Harassment Prevention Policy and a Code of Conduct).

As part of this process:

- Consider the information included in The role of Workplace Health and Safety Queensland in work-related bullying complaints, and whether the information gathered to date indicates that the behaviours are consistent with definitions of work-related bullying and/or harassment.
- If the behaviours appear to be consistent with the definition, the apprentice/trainee should be provided with a copy of this document and be advised that further action to resolve the complaint includes:
 - Where appropriate, and with the consent of the apprentice/trainee, the Department may refer the complaint to the Office of Industrial Relations (OIR). Refer to the below section titled Referring an Apprentice/Trainee complaint to OIR for further information on this process.
 - If the alleged work-related bullying and/or harassment continues, the party making the complaint can contact the WHSQ Advisory Services on 1300 362 128 to explore further options including submitting a formal complaint to OIR.
 - The apprentice/trainee preferring to seek their own independent legal or other professional advice, which may include contacting the police.
 - The apprentice/trainee applying to the Fair Work Commission (FWC) for an order to stop bullying at work (note – a FWC application fee may apply).
- If the party raises training related issues, continue to deal with these issues as per standard regional protocols.
- Assess whether there are any ongoing issues for the engagement of apprentices/trainees at the workplace.
 - Consider the addition of an ad hoc risk identifier (if one has not already been applied).
- Continue regular follow ups with the apprentice/trainee until such time as the apprentice/trainee confirms the situation has been resolved and they no longer require the region's support/involvement.
- Record detailed information in CEDRIC against the training contract of all discussions, meetings, assistance, etc.

Referring an Apprentice/Trainee complaint to the Office of Industrial Relations (OIR):

Factors to be considered when assisting apprentices and trainees experiencing difficulties

A range of factors may impact on the decision of the regional officer and these will vary from case to case. Whilst this is not an exhaustive list of factors and considerations, the information below may assist with taking the most appropriate action.

Factor	Consideration
Is the issue bullying?	Bullying occurs when a person or group of people repeatedly behaves unreasonably towards a worker or a group of workers at work AND the behaviour creates a risk to health and safety. Bullying behaviour may involve: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Aggressive or intimidating conduct • Belittling or humiliating comments • Spreading malicious rumours • Teasing, practical jokes or ‘initiation ceremonies’ • Exclusion from work-related events • Unreasonable work expectations, including too much or too little work, or work below or beyond a worker’s skill level • Displaying offensive material • Pressure to behave in an inappropriate manner
What does not constitute bullying?	Reasonable management action carried out in a reasonable manner does not constitute bullying. Reasonable management action may include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Performance management processes • Disciplinary action for misconduct • Informing a worker about unsatisfactory work performance or inappropriate work behaviour • Asking a worker to perform reasonable duties in keeping with their job • Maintaining reasonable workplace goals and standards.
When referring an apprentice/trainee complaint of work-related bullying and/or harassment to OIR, what supporting documentation may be regarded as suitable to assist OIR with making an initial assessment of the complaint? (Note – Only copies of suitable supporting documentation should be collected by the Departmental officer. Original documents MUST be retained by the party supplying the document.)	Examples of what may be regarded as suitable supporting documentation include, but are not limited to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Copies of any documentation, such as diary entries or notes, kept by the apprentice/trainee detailing: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ What has been happening in the workplace to lead them to making the complaint ○ How they have raised the issue/s relating to the complaint at the workplace ○ What attempts they have made to try and resolve the issue/s. • Copies of any other documentation supporting the complaint, that you may have gathered as part of the process from the apprentice/trainee or other interested parties, such as other apprentices/trainees/employees in the workplace. • Copies of any documentation gathered from the employer as part of the process, such as workplace harassment prevention policy, bullying policy, complaints procedure, or code of conduct. Consider the type of information an OIR Inspector may request as part of their process. Consider also, the ‘Scope of WHSQ involvement’ information included in The role of Workplace Health and Safety Queensland in work-related bullying complaints.

What process will OIR follow if an apprentice/trainee complaint of work-related bullying and/or harassment has been referred from the Department (via QATO) and is triaged by OIR for a regional response?	If an apprentice/trainee complaint is triaged for a regional response, OIR will conduct the following process: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • An Inspector will initially contact the apprentice/trainee to confirm the particulars of the complaint and discuss WHSQ's role in responding to complaints of work-related bullying and/or harassment. • The Inspector will also contact the workplace to advise that a complaint has been received and request evidence that the risk of injury or illness from work related bullying or harassment is being managed. • The Inspector may request the evidence be forwarded to a Regional Office and/or the Inspector may visit the workplace. The type of information the Inspector may request could include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Incident records ○ Workplace harassment policy, grievance procedures ○ Information about the workplace complaint handling system ○ Documentation that demonstrates the management of an employee complaint in accordance with the workplace procedures ○ Records demonstrating information, training and instruction provided to staff regarding work related bullying and harassment ○ Any other information required by the Inspector. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The Inspector will review documentation and may interview workers and duty holders as part of their investigation. • The Inspector will identify if there is an uncontrolled risk of harm from work-related bullying and/or harassment and may take enforcement action to ensure that these risks are eliminated or minimised as far as is reasonably practicable.
What would be some community based/government agencies that could assist apprentices or trainees deal with stress/anxiety/trauma?	Agencies include, but are not limited to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Lifeline – Telephone 13 11 14 • Relationships Australia – Telephone 1300 364 277 • Kids Helpline – Telephone 1800 55 1800 • Child safety service centres – contains a list of Queensland regional centres and contact details for support and assistance during working hours (or for emergencies outside of working hours – Telephone 1800 177 135) • My Community Directory – contains a comprehensive list of counselling services. • DV Connect – Telephone 1800 811 811 • MensLine Australia – Telephone 1300 78 99 78 • Beyond Blue – 1300 22 46 36 • The Salvation Army – 13 72 58
What benefits are there from counselling?	Counselling can assist in clarifying confusion and/or providing strategies to help increase emotional and psychological wellbeing.
