

Extension of probationary period

Purpose

This procedure details the process for granting, or not granting, an application for an extension to the probationary period for an apprentice or trainee under the Further Education and Training Act 2014 (FET Act).

Overview

The probationary period allows the employer and the apprentice/trainee time to assess their compatibility.

An application to extend the probationary period may occur for a variety of reasons, such as:

- the employer is dissatisfied with the apprentice/trainee's progress, or
- the apprentice/trainee is uncertain about their suitability to the apprenticeship/traineeship.

Process

Note – training contracts in several racing industry occupations are managed by the Racing Queensland Board (RQB). Refer to the section below titled 'Definitions' for training contracts where the RQB exercises regulatory powers and functions under the FET Act.

Employer and apprentice/trainee (and parent/guardian, if applicable and appropriate)

- To extend the probationary period of a registered training contract, the parties (i.e. the employer and apprentice/trainee, and parent/guardian if applicable and appropriate) must apply in the approved form and send the application to the relevant Apprentice Connect Australia Provider (Provider), the Department, or the Racing Queensland Board (RQB) for specified racing industry occupations. Form Extension of probationary period of a registered training contract – ATF-014 is available to assist the parties to apply.
 - The application must be submitted at least 14 calendar days before the end of the training contract probationary period, unless there are exceptional circumstances (see Attachment 1).
 - The probationary period can only be extended to a maximum of six months from the commencement date of the training contract.

Delegated officer – Apprentice Connect Australia Provider (Provider), or Training and Skills, (DTET), or Racing Queensland Board (RQB) for specified racing industry occupations:

- Give priority to processing applications to extend the probationary period.
- The decision must be made within seven calendar days after receiving the application. In circumstances such as an office closure period over Christmas, ensure that immediately upon the first business day after the closure any applications received during the period are reviewed, a decision is made and the parties are contacted. Decide to grant or not grant extensions to probationary periods.
 - Applications must be received at least 14 calendar days before the end of the probationary period. Applications received after this period cannot be granted unless satisfied exceptional circumstances caused or contributed to the lateness of the application.
 - The extended probationary period must not exceed six months from the date of commencement of the training contract.
 - For factors to be considered when deciding whether to grant or not grant an extension to the probationary period, see Attachment 1.
- In making a decision, take into account the 23 fundamental Human Rights under the Human Rights Act 2019.

- If the decision is not to grant the extension to probationary period, undertake an HR compatibility review (for the apprentice/trainee, and if applicable, the employer) by completing the associated compatibility review form.
 - i. Departmental officers - retain against the apprentices/trainees training contract record in CEDRIC
 - ii. Providers – retain on file and also forward a copy via DELTA.
 - iii. RQB officers – retain on file and also upload a copy to the Department via SharePoint.
- Depending on the reason given for the application, take action to assist the employer and/or apprentice/trainee to address the situation, for example:
 - unacceptable behaviour/conduct/attitude
 - concerns regarding the long-term commitment to the apprenticeship/traineeship
 - concerns that the apprentice/trainee is not achieving competence.

Apprentice Connect Australia Provider (Provider):

- Send relevant documentation and details of the decision to the Department via DELTA.

Racing Queensland:

- Upload a Format of Advice and relevant documentation to the Department via SharePoint.

Factors to be considered in decision making process

A range of factors may impact on the decision of the delegated officer and these will vary from case to case. Whilst this is not an exhaustive list of factors and considerations, the information below may assist with taking the most appropriate action.

Factor	Consideration
Has the application been received in the approved form?	That is – <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ application by the employer and apprentice/trainee (and, if the apprentice/trainee is under 18, their parent/guardian if appropriate). The FET Act requires that the application be in the approved form, and the Department has developed a form template to assist the applicants to provide all the required information. 'In the approved form' does not, however, require the applicants to use the available template, but that they provide all the required information in writing, under signature (which includes, for example, by electronic signature).
Has the application been received 14 calendar days before the end of the probationary period?	This is a requirement of section 12(3) of the FET Act, although a further provision allows for consideration in 'exceptional circumstances'.
If the application was not received at least 14 calendar days before the end of the probationary period, were there exceptional circumstances that caused or contributed to the lateness of the application?	Exceptional circumstance which may warrant consideration of a late application may include, for example, a delay caused by the apprentice/trainee being in hospital, or natural disasters such as floods, cyclones, etc. The Department would not regard an email mix-up resulting in an employer's email not being received by a Provider/RQB as an exceptional circumstance.
Is the proposed new expiry date of the probationary period for a period not exceeding six months from the commencement of the training contract?	This is a requirement of section 12(2) of the FET Act. Note – Multiple applications may be submitted, however the cumulative approved extensions must not exceed six months from commencement of the training contract.
Can an extension to probationary period be considered if the training contract is lodged, but not registered?	Yes. Refer to the Extension to Probationary Period Work Instructions for details regarding the process.
Can an extension to probationary period be considered when an extension to probationary period is requested at sign-up?	Yes. Refer to the Extension to Probationary Period Work Instructions for details regarding the process.
Is there somewhere that lists the standard probationary period for apprenticeships/traineeships?	Yes. The Declaration of Apprenticeships and Traineeships in Queensland Policy provides information on the standard probationary periods. Information for the specific apprenticeship/traineeships can be found on the Queensland Training Information Service (QTIS).
Is the training contract probationary period the same as the minimum employment period?	No. The training contract probationary period relates only to the apprenticeship/traineeship training contract. The minimum employment periods set out in the Fair Work Act 2019 (Cth) apply to an employee and employer irrespective of the training contract probationary period, and depend on the size of the employer's business (e.g. twelve months for small business employers, and six months for all other employers).
