

I'm a donor

What does the donor conception information register mean for me?

The new Assisted Reproductive Technology Act 2024 helps donor-conceived people to understand their genetic history and identity.

What is the register?

It will give donor-conceived people (and others) access to details about you (the donor) and any donor-conceived siblings. This will help donor-conceived people understand their genetic background and identity.

The register will include information about donor conception procedures done before and after the new laws start, regardless of whether the donation was made anonymously.

All donor-conceived people (16 or older) will be able to apply for information from the register.

When will the register start?

The register won't be ready right away.

RBDM will be working with assisted reproductive technology providers to collect information and developing the register and service for you.

You can let RBDM know you would like to be told when the new law will start, visit www.qld.gov.au/RBDMdonorRegister

My details in the register

The new laws don't allow details to be removed from the register. However, some details can only be released with your consent.

RBDM will contact you if your identifying details are given to a donor-conceived person or their descendant.

Submit a form to RBDM if you do not:

- want to be contacted if your details are released, or
- consent to the details (that need your consent) to be released.

All forms will be available when the register starts.

Donor-conceived person's details

You can choose to apply for a donor-conceived person's contact information and details from the register.

Support

Free specialised counselling services will be available to you if your details are released if you wish to use it. More information available when the register starts.

Looking for more information?

Contact the us at:

DCIRegister@justice.qld.gov.au

Identifying details (only with donor-conceived person's consent)

- name, full date of birth and place of birth
- name of the provider who carried out the donor-conception procedure and the place it was done.

Non-identifying details

- year of birth and sex

Contact information (only with donor-conceived person's consent)

- home address
- phone number or email address
- any other way the donor-conceived person may be contacted.

Who can ask for my information from the register?

Donor-conceived person (16 or older) can apply for:

Identifying details

- name and full date of birth.

Non-identifying details

- donor ID code
- year of birth and place of birth
- ethnicity and physical characteristics
- place where your gamete was taken
- relevant medical history
- profile information (hobbies or interests, family history, education, photos, correspondence, and psychological history).

Contact information (only with your consent)

- home address
- phone number or email address
- any other way you may be contacted.

Parent of a donor-conceived person can apply for:

Identifying details (only with your consent)

- name and full date of birth.

Non-identifying details

- donor ID code
- year of birth and place of birth
- ethnicity and physical characteristics
- place where your gamete was taken
- relevant medical history
- profile information (hobbies or interests, family history, education, photos, correspondence, and psychological history).

Contact information (only with your consent)

- home address
- phone number or email address
- any other way you may be contacted.

A direct descendant of a donor-conceived person can apply for:

Identifying details

- name and full date of birth.

Non-identifying details

- donor ID code
- year of birth and place of birth
- ethnicity and physical characteristics
- place where your gamete was taken
- relevant medical history
- profile information (hobbies or interests, family history, education, photos, correspondence, and psychological history).

Contact information (only with your consent)

- home address
- phone number or email address
- any other way you may be contacted.

Person with parental responsibility for a donor-conceived person (under 16) can apply for:

Identifying details (only with your consent)

- name and full date of birth.

Non-identifying details

- donor ID code
- year of birth and place of birth
- ethnicity and physical characteristics
- place where your gamete was taken
- relevant medical history
- profile information (hobbies or interests, family history, education, photos, correspondence, and psychological history).

Contact information (only with your consent)

- home address
- phone number or email address
- any other way you may be contacted.

